MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Bundy Flavours remains a tremendous initiative of the Bundaberg Regional Council's Events team.

It is always a revelation when Bundy Flavours rolls around because the event manages to focus community attention on the diversity of product we grow and produce right here in the Bundaberg Region.

Too often we are lulled into thinking that the obvious crops – sugar cane, avocado and macadamia trees – are the basic extent of agriculture across our region. Nothing could be further from fact.

Our agricultural produce which ranges from tomatoes, zucchini, snow peas, rock melons, water melons, strawberries, blueberries plus our flavour filled citrus, reinforces our food bowl status.

Add to that our locally produced freshwater fish supported by the sensational offerings from our rivers and reefs and you have a mouth-watering endorsement of our region's riches.

Don't forget to throw in the Bundaberg produced cocktail of beverages that have gained international recognition and our delicious dining circle is complete.

The Bundaberg region is a chef's playground and a food lovers delight.

The annual event has again attracted some of the best known names from culinary circles with celebrity chefs Alastair McLeod and Matt Golinski back with their creative cooking genius.

The Farm Flavours Picnic which also returned this year was a resounding success. What better way to enjoy the bounty of the Bundy region than a relaxing picnic among the macadamia trees treated to incredible weather and superb entertainment.

The Bundy Flavours event is an open window to showcase all that is fresh, flavoursome and fabulous about our industries and our lifestyle.

Our regional garden lovers will also be delighted to know that celebrity gardener Noel Burdette is attending to offer expert advice to add to your gardening pleasure.

I know as a Council we will continue to endorse this great promotion for our region that provides such a welcome focus on our very own "Bundy Flavours"!
